Archery is growing in popularity - particularly with youngsters. If you want to teach the sport you will require a full understanding of the issues affecting safety, techniques and equipment. The Leader's Course gives you an internationally recognised qualification which will allow you to teach novice individuals and groups safely.

During the first three days a qualified Grand National Archery Society instructor will take you through the units outlined below.

On the fourth day of the course there will be a formal examination.

Unit A: General

Candidates will gain knowledge of:

- all safety observances and rules
- alternative range layouts with regard to public and participant safety
- suitable rounds for beginners and juniors
- various forms of archery
- various incentives schemes

Unit B: Shooting

Candidates will learn how to hit the target consistently at up to 20 yards using basic Bare-Bow and Freestyle methods.

Unit C: Teaching and improving

Candidates will be able to:

- teach basic Bare-Bow style
- teach basic Freestyle
- improve performance in both

Unit D: Equipment care, safety and use

Candidates will learn how to:

- advise on suitable equipment for activity groups and individuals
- recommend sources of supply and be aware of costs
- maintain equipment in good working order
- understand the importance of equipment maintenance regarding safety and accident prevention
